National Guardsmen In Battle With Tacoma Rioters

-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

P. R. MILNES

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management; in fact, many times they do not.—Editor.

SOBBING SYSTEM

There is an old saying among men who are wont to gather around a poker table that if you sob long enough you are bound to get a winning hand.

Whether that is good, sound philosophy I am unable to say, but I confess to having seen it work out that way.

LIKE JACKIE HORNER

Reading an editorial in the Post-Dispatch of Pittsburg recalls the gambler's maxim. That city of storm and strife in things municipal and political, has wept and wailed for many moons because of the alleged inequality in the distribution of political pie. But with rejoicing I note, that like little Jackie Horner, Pittsburg has put its thumb in its mouth, pulled out a plum and proudly now declares "what a good boy am I."

I refer to the recent appointment of a deputy by County Clerk Sam C. Wells in the person of Miss Esther Mabey of the industrial city.

MORE POWER TO HER

Let no one think I begrudge that city all the patronage it can gather to its agitated bosom. To the contrary I want to cast all kind of gold-plated kudos, that is if the treasury does not prosecute me for gold hoarding, in the direction of Pittsburg, now that that long cherished dream of representation in the marble halls of the county buildings has been achieved. Being rather pleased, the Post-Dispatch naively remarks that "County Clerk Wells' appointment of a Pittsburg resident is a commendable step that should be followed by others."

NOT OVERLOOKED

That's all very fine, and one would not be out of line in thinking that this is the first time Pittsburg has ever been accorded any

Make Public Answer To Mrs. Booth

MARTINEZ, July 12.—The grand jury answer to the demand of Mrs. Iona Booth that she be given a "clean bill of health" and reinstated in her former position in the county social service department work was made public today for the first time when it was filed with the county clerk. Mrs. Booth was assistant to Mrs. Ruth McCord, indicted on three counts of embezzlement.

There has been much discussion as to the contents of the communication, but for some reason best known to the body, its text has until now been zealously safeguarded.

A rumor that a minority report had been filed, proved, upon investigation to be without foundation.

The letter, which contains the reasons why the grand jury refused to accede to Mrs. Booth's demand, is as follows:

"April 19, 1935

"Dear Mrs. Booth—In reference to your appearance before the grand

Protest To Be Made On Raise Of Assessment

Contra Costa county's protest to a State Board of Equalization plan to arbitrarily raise assessments here to equalize them with other counties of the state will be given a hearing at Sacramento next Thursday.

Forty-five counties have entered protests.

The board proposes to make assessments of all counties 50 percent of actual value. Some counties assess at 20 percent of true value and others up to 70 percent. This county has been assessed on a 39 percent basis.

Fall In Store Is Basis For Damage Action

Mrs. Margaret Collins, wife of Attorney Robert Collins of this city yesterday filed suit against S. H. Kress & Company and M. Nelson, manager of the company's Richmond store, asking damages of $5,000 for injuries Mrs. Collins suffered June 17, 1935, when she slipped and fell on an oiled and waxed floor in the Richmond store.

The suit filed through Attorney T. M. Carlson, declares she suffered torn ligaments and muscles in her left leg, contusions of the hip and thigh, an arm injury and shock.

Claim is made that the floor was slippery and in a dangerous condition.

Death Toll In Chinese Flood Grows Hourly

SHANGHAI, Saturday, July 13.—UP—Thousands of square miles are flooded today in overflows of the Yangtze and Yellow rivers and their tributaries in many directions.

Estimates of the dead in the floods are not reliable, but fragmentary reports indicate at least several hundred deaths, in addition to the 2,000 known dead in Yenshi, in western Honan, drowned in their sleep Monday night when the Yellow river spilled over its banks.

Several thousand coolies are frantically working to preserve the dikes in which there are numerous breaks.

No Jury Is Selected In Plot Trial

MODESTO, July 12—UP—Jury selection difficulties in the trial of eight men charged with a dynamite plot against the Standard Oil Co. tonight indicated the case might become a labor cause celebre in California.

The fourth day since opening of the trial passed with opposing counsel still seeking twelve mutually acceptable jurors. At noon the defense had 19 challenges remaining and the prosecution 31. Each side started with 50 challenges.

Superior Judge Roy B. Maxey ordered a Saturday morning court session in an effort to speed the task.

Communistic issues threatened to play an important role in trial of the men, who assertedly had dynamite caps in their possession when arrested April 2. District Attorney Leslie A. Cleary, despite bitter defense objections, frequently queried prosepective jurors as to their views on communism.

Labor unions of the Pacific coast, particularly the International Longshoremen's Association, have contributed to defense funds in the trial. The asserted dynamite plot was said to have been a part of a state-wide terrorist campaign connected with the abortive oil tankship strike of union workers.

Rancho Employee Fined By Judge

Fred Tibbett, arrested several weeks ago in a raid on the Rancho San Pablo, was fined $50 by Justice of the Peace A. H. MacKinnon in El Cerrito yesterday. Tibbett was charged with operating a gambling game.

NAVAL BASE HERE WILL BE STUDIED

A congressonal committee will inspect the Winehaven site for a proposed naval supply base, along with several other sites in the area, it was learned yesterday.

In addition to the Winehaven site, the committee will go to Mission Rock in San Francisco Bay and Hunters Point on the San Francisco side of the bay.

PARTY LEAVES EAST

The congressional party left Washington yesterday. Members of the party are: Sears, D., Fla., Scrugham, D., Nev. Cary, R., Ky., Barnham, R., Calif., Maas, R., Minn., Darden, D., Va., O'Connell, D., R. I., Scott, D., Calif., Higgins, R., Conn., Sutphin, D., N. J. and McGrath, R., Calif. Representative Buck D., Calif., may join the party when it inspects Mare Island.

The congressmen will fly here by way of St. Louis and Boulder Dam to San Diego, thence up the coast to Long Beach, Monterey and Sunnyvale.

SEEK SUPPLY BASE

Officials of the Twelfth Naval District said the Navy Department had been working "for years" for the establishment of a West Coast supply base and that such a project would involve the expenditure of several millions of dollars.

Its function, they said, would be similar to that performed for the army by Fort Mason where quartermaster's warehouses, transport docks and other facilities for receiving, storage and shipment of supplies are maintained.

BUILDING PROGRAM

Construction, they said, would involve the building of docks, wharves and warehouses capable of handling huge amounts of material.

The congressional delegation, dispaches said, also plans to visit Monterey to obtain firsthand information concerning its suitability for a submarine base and will inspect the Mare Island Navy Yard and the Sunnyvale dirigible base, the latter with a view to considering possible future use, either for dirigibles or airplanes.

Woman Named As Slayer Of Eastern Youth

CHICAGO, July 13.—UP—A bob-haired grandmother tonight named a former burlesque queen as slayer of Ervin Lang, 28, whose legless body was found in a Hammond, Ind., swamp, mutilated beyond recognition.

Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, Lang's mother-in-law confessed, according to police that she hired Evelyn Smith, erstwhile burlesque charmer and more lately consort of a Chinese to do the killing, which was accomplished after Lang had been served several highballs.

Harry Jung, dapper Chinese whom Mrs. Kunkel named as having helped dispose of the body, was sought by police. She said he had no part in the actual killing.

New Pastor Named For Local Church

Rev. R. H. Walsh of Berkeley has been named pastor of the First Methodist church here and will preach his first sermon at the 11 o'clock services tomorrow morning.

Rev. Walsh is completing his religious training at Berkeley and plans to reside in Richmond. He replaces Dr. E. P. Dennett, who has retired.

Waley Case To Be Given Jury Today

TACOMA, Wash., July 12—UP—Ruddy faced John Francis Dore, the Pacific Northwest's leading criminal lawyer, pleaded for "mercy rather than justice" for Margaret Thulin Waley, 19.

Trial of Mrs. Waley on Lindbergh Act charges in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping adjourned at 4 [illegible] p. m. after completion of government rebuttal. The trial will resume at 10 a. m. Saturday with Judge E. E. Cushman's instructions and submission of the case to the jury.

The former mayor of Seattle termed Mrs. Waley a dupe in the hand of her husband, Harmon Waley, and the fugitive William Mahan.

DENIED CHARGES

He said she was a product of society, who knew only blind obedience to the dictates of her husband.

He denied the scathing denunciation of Assistant Prosecutor Owen Hughes, that she was a 'gun moll' and a participant in the $200,000 kidnaping from the start.

JURY SPELL-BOUND

He called out passages from the Bible and from Dante's Divine Comedy to show that she could not have acted differently.

Each of the 10 men and two women of the jury appeared spell-bound by Dore's oratory. They watched his every gesture and missed not a word during the hour and one-half that he spoke.

Dore summed up his case without having heard the final prosecution arguments. He paced the cor-

Advisors To F. D. R. Are Branded Reds

WASHINGTON, July 13—UP—President Roosevelt is surrounded by "numerous conspirators" who favor communism and do not want prosperity to return, organized business charged today in a hot tempered hearing on proposals to increase the taxes on the wealthy.

George B. Chandler, representing the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, jabbed away for two hours at New Deal financial policies until finally he was pushed into the background while members of the House ways and means committee held an angry political field day.

VOICE OPPOSITION

Later Robert L. Lund, chairman of the board of directors of the National Manufacturers Association, voiced the opposition of his organization to increased inheritance and gift taxes, higher levies on corporaton profits and a stiffer income tax rate in the top brackets.

Lund's statements were mild and orderly. Chandler, however, turned out to be a fire-eater, who, unlike

William Arrington, 327 Ninth street, was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail when he was found guilty of charges of battery by Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday. Arrington was arrested after a fight with several Mexicans.

TROOPS USE COLD STEEL AGAINST MOB

TACOMA, July 12—UP—National Guardsmen drove rioting lumber strikers and sympathizers out of the Tacoma industrial section tonight after five hours of gas barrages, hand to hand street fighting and use of bayonets and clubs.

The rout was effected when three hundred guardsmen of the 1st battalion, 161st Infantry, were reinforced by one hundred soldiers rushed from nearby Camp Murray in motor lorries.

12 ARE INJURED

At least 12 demonstrators were injured when they were slashed by bayonets or struck by clubbed rifles as they resisted efforts of the guardsmen to clear the down-town area.

Twenty-five alleged leaders of the demonstrations were arrested by soldiers. It was believed they would be released late tonight.

500 IN RIOT

The demonstration started when five hundred strikers and sympathizers, including many women took possession of the eleventh avenue bridge approach. They intended to prevent lumber trucks and workmen from leaving the 14 sawmills in the industrial area that are operating under National Guard protection to strike breakers, without sanction of the Sawmill and Timberworkers Union.

The Guardsmen moved in immediately, wearing steel helmets and gas masks, and with bayonets fixed.

Hearing Held By Governor On Racing Measure

SACRAMENTO, July 12.—UP—With only one witness speaking in opposition to the proposed law Governor Frank F. Merriam today conducted a hearing on a bill passed by the last session of the state legislature, legalizing greyhound racing under a pari-mutual system.

J. E. White, representing the San Francisco Church Federation, was the sole person to condemn the measure at the hearing. He charged that it was intended to legalize gambling rather than dog racing, and termed it "a nefarious business."

Assemblyman Clifford Kallam, Watsonville, led a long list of delegates who urged enactment of the bill on the ground that it would regulate the sport and give the state an estimated $1,000,000 additional revenue.

Craik Hearing Will Be Held On Friday

Douglas Craik, riding master at a Berkeley hills riding academy, will face trial on charges of battery in the court of Justice of the Peace A. H. MacKinnon, Friday. Craik is accused of an attempted attack on Miss Irene Bassetti in Craik's quarters at the riding academy in June. He is free on $500 after entering a plea of not guilty to the charges.

The girl charges that Craik lured her to his rooms and attempted to make advances. She said she was forced to flee without her riding habit after a struggle with the man.

Local Man Is Sought By State Police For Kidnaping Of 2 Sons

California police last night were searching for a Richmond man who allegedly kidnaped his two small sons yesterday morning from Mill Valley and threatened to kill both the children and himself.

Defender

ATTORNEY TOM M. CARLSON, who maintained in a speech before the Rotary Club yesterday that the Constitution is still the bulwark of our liberties.

The man [illegible], 23, former Un[illegible]ornia student who resid[illegible] Pennsylvania avenue, Richmond. He is employed by a local oil company.

QUARRELLED WITH WIFE

The "kidnaping" climaxed a bitter quarrel between Madden and his young wife who called Police Chief Alex McCurdy of Mill Valley as the machine bearing Madden and the two children disappeared from sight.

McCurdy leaped into his own car as Madden raced through the town at 60 miles an hour toward Sausalito. The Mill Valley police chief flashed out teletype warnings and then took up the chase.

LOSE TRIAL

"We checked him half-way to Sausalito, but he never arrived there," the chief said. "He must have doubled back, either for the coast or Contra Costa county.

"His relatives are just about out of their minds with worry. They are convinced that Madden means business."

Richmond police were immediately notified of the kidnaping and a watch was placed on Madden's home here and on the Richmond-San Rafael ferry in

Eloquent Is Defense Of Constitution

Appealing in its logic and convincing in its analysis, was the defense of the constitution as delivered yesterday by Attorney Tom Carlson when he appeared before the Richmond Rotary Club. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Harry Ford, president of the club.

NOT OUTMODED

In his address which received much complimentary comment, Mr. Carlson pointed out the reasons why the constitution is not outworn and that it should not be relegated to the scrap heap solely because the recent NRA decision by the Supreme Court has been assailed in some quarters by carping and disappointed critics.

"The demagogue cries out," he declared, "against the established order, with honeyed words makes promises impossible of fulfillment and demands the destruction of the prevailing order and cries that the constitution of the United States is

C. C. To Get An Agricultural Training School

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Immediate measures to cope with California's increasingly serious homeless-boy problem were instituted today by Frank Y. McLaughlin, works project administrator.

With plans nearing completion for the official opening of the Citizen Training Corps for transient youths at Clyde, Contra Costa county, on July 20, McLaughlin announced he has completed arrangements for the establishment of two agricultural schools, one in San Bernardino county and the other in Contra Costa county.

The Southern California school will be established on the old Glen Hellen ranch, near San Bernardino, while the Northern California school will be opened on the Harrington ranch, near Antioch. Each institution will have an enrollment of about 80 boys who show special aptitude for agricultural work, according to H. A. R. Carleton, assistant to McLaughlin in charge of the SERA transient service department.

The agricultural schools will be conducted along lines similar to the Training Corps at Clyde where "citizen cadets" will be given vocatonal training and instructions in citizenship obligations.

McLaughlin announced that plans are being considered for the opening of a second Citizen Training Corps in Southern California. The southern unit, similar to the one at Clyde, would be financed by McLaughlin out of federal funds allotted California.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Even in his disappointment, Al Smith chuckled.

As honorary night superintendent of the Central Park Zoo, Smith has written the governors of various states asking that each contribute one of its native animals.

Hearing that Maine was overrun with moose, he asked Gov. Louis J. Braun if he would like to present a pair to the zoo

Brann's reply was brief and pointed. It was a hunting license.

"He must be a Republican governor," lamented the honorary night superintendent.

But the H. N. S. was wrong. Braun, too, is a Democrat.

Teagarden's body was recovered.

Soviets Plan To Make Flight Over Polar Ice

WASHINGTON, July 12.— The Soviet Union today requested permission from the United States for a Soviet plane to fly over American territory on what is understood to be a projected flight over the north pole.

Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet ambassador, made the request of R. Walter Moore, assistant secretary of state. Both declined to reveal any details of the proposed flight, but it was reported the Russians will attempt to fly over the pole from Siberia and then pass over Alaska. Collection of scientific information was described as among the objectives.

LEGION JUNIOR TEAM BEATEN IN 2ND GAME

The Richmond Junior Legion team booted away its second game in its series with Rincon Hill at San Francisco yesterday by a score of 11 to 10 to be eliminated from the championship series.

The local boys were afflicted with butter fingers during most of the game—a contest which they should have won, hands down.

In the sixth inning the Rincon Hill team scored three runs without getting a hit. In that canto the local boys threw the ball around the lot with abandon, or something.

Despite their walloping, the boys made one of the best showings ever made by a Richmond club in the junior circuit, due to the hard work of Bill Collins who has been managing the club.

Police Gather Evidence In Death Of Girl

LAKEPORT, July 12.—Investigators from the district attorney's office were gathering evidence today on which they said they would seek indictment on homicide charges of J. W. Murphy, 41, Arbuckle farmer, in connection with the drowning of his 14-year-old niece.

Murphy was still held in the county jail on an open charge pending meeting of the grand jury here Monday.

The girl, Marie Meyer, drowned in Blue Lake July 4, while Murphy was playfully "ducking" her in the water, before the eyes of Independence Day vacationists. Witnesses pursued him until he was rescued by deputy sheriffs.

JUVENILE STAR CLAIMS HE IS SON OF YOHE

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12—UP—Robert Edward Thomas, film juvenile, is the son of May Yohe, footlight belle of the 90's, and 20 persons in Portland will vouch for it, William E. Kiernan, close friend of Thomas' parents, said today.

Captain Jan A. Smuts, third and present husband of May, said in Boston that Thomas' assertions he is May's son are a "a pack of lies."

The late E. R. Thomas, druggist, often told the story of his and his wife's adoption in 1909 of Miss Yohe's baby, Kiernan said.

"May Yohe herself made the suggestion that the Thomases take her expected baby," Kiernan revealed. "She had come to Portland for seclusion while awaiting its arrival and was often in Thomas' dispensary.

"Thomas made no secret of the boy's maternity, except to the child. It must have been only recently that Mrs. Thomas informed him."

Robert is said to have sent Miss Yohe a telegram July 5 when he learned of their asserted relation. It said: ". . . I should like to meet you. I want to know you, not as a mother now perhaps, but at least as a warmly affectionate friend. . . ."

At the time of the alleged adoption May was the unhappy wife of Captain Bradlee Putnan Strong. She had eloped with him a year before her divorce from Lord Francis Hope, owner at that time of the famed and reputedly fateful Hope diamond. She was divorced from Strong in 1910.

The beautiful actress, whose finest performance was as Christopher in "Little Christopher Columbus" left one souvenir—a tin box—with the Thomases when she gave up her son, Kiernan said.

The box remained unopened for years, but Thomas finally yielded to urgings of friends.

He found dozens of pawn tickets and copies of large salaried stage contracts — reminiscent of the star's ebbs and heights.

Kiernan said he watched Robert grow from a child to a handsome young man. The lad was a pole vaulter in high school and attended Pacific University at Forest Grove, Ore., for a time.

Jack Day, ex-United States marshal, confirmed Kiernan's story. He said Thomas had told him of the adoption.

The Thomases lived here for a time and then moved to Puyallup, Wash., later moving to Los Angeles.

HOURS GIVEN FOR PLAYGROUND SPORTS

A number of mothers of children in need of play places have made inquiries about the Fairmont playground schedule.

Here it is:

Mondays, 1 to 4 P. M.—Dancing-class instruction.

Tuesday, 1 to 4 P. M.—Sewing class.

Wednesdays, 1 to 4 P. M.—Indoors: stamp club activities, under the direction of Mr. Norman Shepard of Oakland.

Outdoors — Tennis— Mr. Bert Childs, instructor.

Thursdays, 1 to 4 P. M.—Camp Fire Girls meeting. General outdoor play under guidance of the playground director.

On Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 1 to 4 P. M.—the playgrounds are open for football, baseball, tennis and other sports.

Fridays and Saturdays the grounds are closed at present, but beginning Monday, July 15, thero will be a man assistant-director and it is planned to open the grounds on Fridays and Saturdays from 1 to 4 P. M. Notice of the new schedule will appear in these columns as soon as it is arranged.

Mrs. Dora Hewitt is playground director, and is on the grounds at the above named hours each week.

All classes are free to the public and all are cordially invited to attend. All children are welcome on the playgrounds during the hours scheduled above.

ELECTRICIAN HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

Oscar B. Brown, 40, El Cerrito sign repairer, escaped electrocution Thursday afternoon but he suffered severe burns and shock when he fell across a Southern Pacific power line while attempting to adjust a neon sign at Fresno and Solano avenues, Berkeley.

A ladder gave way and Brown plunged 20 feet to the ground, striking the power line in his descent. His foot caught in the sign and for a time he dangled head downward, striking the power line as he struggled to free himself. He is in a Berkeley hospital.

MODEL DAIRY IS OPEN FIR INSPECTION

The Stege Sanitary Board is calling attention this week to a model dairy on Fink Lane. The dairy is said to be a model for cleanliness and sanitary equipment. El Cerrito people are invited to visit it any afternoon.

ACTIVITIES OF GIRL SCOUTS ARE DETAILED

A group of El Cerrito Campfire Girls went to Derber Park on July 4th, where they held a picnic. Among them were Lillian Goodwin, Allyce Campbell, Hazel Burrows, Violet Tomkinson, Marjory O'Brien. They were under the leadership of Mrs. Dora Hewitt, Campfire director.

Sixteen Campfire Girls and their director, Mrs. Hewitt, left yesterday morning for El Granada, near Half Moon Bay, to camp over the week-end. The group will occupy a cottage, the use of which was generously donated by Mrs. W. D. Stark. The use of the truck for the transportation of the group and its equipment was donated by Leo Anderson of Berkeley.

Swimming, instruction in the art of building outdoor fires, and outdoor cookery will occupy most of the time of the girls until Monday when they will return to El Cerrito.

An Honor Court will be held Saturday evening at El Granada for the El Cerrito group at which all eligible will be presented with honor beads and four of the girls—Hazel Burrows, Bernice Brown, Esther Leavitt and Allyce Campbell—will be given the rank of Wood Gatherers.

During this outing girls will receive camp honors for sleeping outdoors.

Other week end trips will be taken instead of a single camping trip of greater length.

STRATOSPHERE HOP ENDED BY GAS EXPLOSION

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 12.—A crumpled mass of balloon fabric gave mute testimony tonight of the failure of the second United States Army-National Geographic Society stratosphere expedition.

The gas bag of the mighty balloon, the largest free balloon ever constructed, collapsed shortly before dawn today, less than an hour before the take-off was scheduled. The work had gone on without a hitch until suddenly there was a faint explosion, like the breaking of an inflated paper bag. This was followed by the angry hiss of escaping gas.

Several puffs of gray smoke arose into the still, clear air of the early dawn. Then the gas bag slowly began to crumple. It settled over the shining gondola which had been wheeled from the shed.

Workmen pulled the balloon fabric from the gondola, after recovering from the stunning shock of seeing the expenditure of thousands of dollars and almost a year in preparation dissipated into the thin mountain air.

Captain Albert W. Stevens, flight commander, was first to recover from the shock of the disaster which shattered his hopes of setting a new world's altitude record and obtaining invaluable data for science.

He ordered the ground crew, composed of cavalrymen from Fort Meade to rush in and disentangle the folds of billowing fabric around the gondola, and with Captain Orvil Anderson, his aid and pilot, personally assisted the soldiers in freeing the four members of the crew who had been caught in the descending cloud of snowy fabric.

Captain Stevens then made a quick check of the stratosphere crew and after discovering that no one was injured stood in stunned consternation at the sudden collapse of the expedition on which a year's study and work had been expended.

The entire investment in the Explorer II, free amounted to $175,000. If purchased on the open market, the balloon as it was equipped would cost $200,000. The fabric envelope was valued at about $40,000.

However, a temporary structure on top of the 9 foot metal gondola saved it from damage. None of the valuable scientific instruments including cameras, radio sets was damaged in the explosion, officials of the expedition reported after a survey.

Also gone for naught was the expenditure of $1,150 daily for the maintenance of the camp which was established late in May.

It had not been determined late today whether or not another attempt would be made this year on the stratosphere altitude record.

U. S. CITIZENS FLEE AS WAR GROWS NEAR

ADDIS ABABA, July 12—UP—Officials close to Emperor Haile Selassie today said he considers war with Italy inevitable.

Their statement caused additional Americans and other foreigners to flee the country.

Under American auspices one Italian, one Greek and six negroes entrained for Djibout, the French coastal port, from whence they intend to sail for the United States.

Two American women fled to Egypt and the regular passenger train for Djibouti carried [illegible] refugees.

MORE TROOPS SENT

ROME, July 12—UP—New moves for peace between Italy and Abyssinia were interrupted rudely today when the government published fresh charges against the troops of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Coincident with official reports of new Italo-Abyssinian incidents the transport Aventino was ordered to sail from Naples for Italian Somaliland with troop reenforcements and war materials. Government allegations of numerous "episodes" in the East African danger zone included charges that Abyssinian soldiers held up an Italian caravan in Eritrea. The wife of the Italian consul at Gondar was traveling with the caravan.

HELD BY TROOPS

An official communique alleged soldiers loyal to the "conquering lion of Judah" held the consul's wife for two days near Gondar although the local city commissioner had granted her a regular pass.

The caravan was allowed to proceed only after vigorous official protests.

The communique further alleged armed Abyssinians held up two Italian Somaliland shepherds who inadvertently crossed the frontier near Gogula. They demanded a fine of four thalers for each head of cattle. When the shepherds protested they were unable to pay the Abyssinians confiscated 10 oxen and beat one shepherd.

25 ARE ARRESTED

Near Adua, the government charged, Abyssinian authorities arrested 25 persons for selling food to the Italian consul.

Subsequently they discharged a clerk who dared talk with the consul.

The communique said Abyssinian police at Addis Ababa arrested several servants employed by the Italian military attache and a native soldier on duty at the Italian legaton. They were released only after protests by the Italian minister.

U. S. IS INTERESTED

WASHINGTON, July 12.—UP—The United States is "interested in maintenance" of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact in connection with the controversy between Italy and Abyssinia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said tonight.

Sixty-three nations are signatory to the pact which outlaws war as an instrument of national policy. It has been invoked, without success in Japan's activities in Manchuria.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Nine Teamsters Are Arrested In Beer Hall Blasts

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12.—UP—Nine members of the International Teamsters Union, including James Scott, Portland business agent, were arrested and named today in charges ranging from destruction of private property to after hours.

The arrests resulted from bombing or damaging of nearly a dozen beer parlors in Portland in recent weeks—outgrowth of a jurisdictional dispute between the teamsters and the Brewery Workers Union, each of which contends its members should drive beer trucks.

Police said some of those arrested had avoided detection earlier by pretending to cooperate with police in efforts to catch the bombers.

OIL FOR LAMPS OF CHINA AT FOX SUNDAY

"Oil for the Lamps of China," a powerful and absorbing drama and a stirring human document will start screening at the Fox theatre tomorrow after receiving the plaudits of press and public alike as one of the finest productions ever made.

The picture offers a delineation of the life of American pioneers in China, who fought flood, fire and famine as well as pestilence and banditry to carry on for American firms whose business they carried. The scenes for the most part are laid in the Orient.

American enterprise against Oriental intrigue and the courage, daring and persistence of America's young men to carry on for their firms, are depicted, as well as the price that these young men pay for their loyalty at the hands of the institutions that they represent.

John Eldredge, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Byron, Henry O'Neill and many other players are included in the cast. Mervyn Le Roy directed.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, July 12.—UP—Laurence Stallings has a recipe for good writing. He says:

"Two parts trouble, two parts perspiration and one part tears makes for a very good writer."

"A writer," he continues, explaining the first part of his recipe, "is a man who puts down on paper the sum total of his experiences in adversity and good luck, with maybe a few touches of imagination to lighten the sordid tale."

Many Hollywood writers have found this pithy saying axiomatic in their own careers. Among them is Stallings himself. He knows what it is to be pinched in the vise of hard times. For months, after the war, he walked the streets of New York before he could find a newspaper writing job. But he believes definitely that those months were a decided asset to him.

To prove his point, Stallings likes to stroll down the main hall of the Writers' Building on the Paramount lot and point at the various closed doors.

"Now take that guy Grover Jones," he says. "He's the son of a former coal miner, and he's swallowed enough coal dust himself to send the flagship Pennsylvania from San Pedro to Seattle. Grover is one of the best scenarists in the business, and those early hard knocks taught him most of what he knows about writing."

Next is William Slavens McNutt. McNutt, Stallings will tell you, has worked in lamp chimney factories, gold mines, Salvation Army wood lots, shipped at sea, trouped with road shows and attended Emerson College of Oratory.

And so the tour continues. Frederick Stephani was a gun-runner in Nicaragua, Eddie Welsh was a drummer, Charles Brackett wrote for pulp magazines, Samuel Hoffenstein and Waldemar Young were press agents and reporters.

But there were some doors before which Stallings had to remain silent. Dorothy Parker, Frank Adams, Harold Lamb, Phillip Wylie, Alice D. G. Miller, Tiffany Thayer and John P. Medbury were never, so far as is known, on relief rolls.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The Italian government has been canvassing the prospects of a war loan in the United States. Under the Johnson Act an outright bond issue by Italy would be taboo, since the Italian government has defaulted on its debts for the last war.

On the other hand, a private Italian firm could float a bond issue here, regardless of the Johnson Act, since the Act applies only to governments.

The Italians, however, have looked into this, and fear it would be suspected. Now, according to confidential reports cabled by American agents to the Administration, it is proposed to float a camouflaged loan through Swiss bankers. Bonds would be issued for the colonization and development of North Africa."

ETHIOPIAN LOAN

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, also would like to float a loan in the United States. Having defaulted on no war debts, this would be possible.

However, the emperor's agents found no enthusiasm on the part of American bankers. The bankers wanted collateral. Ethiopia offered a lien on its customs receipts.

"But what guarantee can you give us," asked the bankers, "that your customs houses will not be in Italian hands within a few months?"

There the deal ended.

HUEY'S CAR

Huey Long is eager to advertise Huey Long, but not the automobile he buys.

When he bought a new car the other day, the dealer saw a chance for publicity. He engaged a cameraman to "shoot" Huey receiving the keys of his new car in the court of the Senate Office Building.

Huey took the car, but the cameraman didn't take the picture. "I'm paying cash money," said Long, pulling out a thousand-dollar bill, "and that's all you're goin' to get out of me."

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

For nearly two years the Federal Trade Commission has been in the doldrums. Its famous investigations of the Power Trust and of the Meat Packers, its crusades to enforce the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, were temporarily forgotten. The public spotlight played exclusively on the NRA.

Thesis of the NRA was exactly opposite to the Federal Trade Commission's. The NRA encouraged combines, working agreements within industry. It considered the Trade Commission's anti-trust ideas out of step and old-fogeyish.

Today, all that is over. As a result of the Supreme Court decision, the situation is reversed. The Blue Eagle is silent and forlorn. Its roost is being rapidly dismantled. It has been shorn of power and voice.

The FTC has now come back.

This was the real significance behind the President's recent order directing the commission to initiate immediate negotiations with all industries desiring voluntary codes.

By this act the President, without saying so in so many words, restored the FTC to its dominant position as the government's trade and business regulating agency.

According to the temporary law under which the NRA is now operating, voluntary codes can be authorized. But the President did not turn to the plucked Blue Eagle. Instead he entrusted the job to the FTC—thus still further devitalizing the NRA.

The FTC always has had power to approve voluntary codes. But throughout its twenty years of existence it was asked to grant only a few. Now, with NRA codes wiped out, several score industries are clamoring for FTC licenses in an effort to preserve such business gains as were obtained under the Blue Eagle.

Uncle Sam now is casting an inquiring eye on antiques.

Commissioner of Customs James H. Moyle has ordered a general "tightening up" at the ten ports of entry where "artistic antiquities," if established as productions of an earlier date than 1830, are entitled to free entry to the United States.

Moyle's action has helped to swell Federal revenues. In a recent shipment from abroad to New Orleans, heavy duties were imposed on supposedly "antique" China, entered as pre-1830 variety. One of the plates happened to bear a design of the steamship Great Eastern, which did not exist until 1858.

Some supposedly ancient furniture received like treatment. Nails withdrawn for inspection were machine cut. Machine cut nails originated in 185[illegible]. Previous to that only hand-forged nails were used.

So, if you import an antique, be sure it has a bona-fide existence prior to 1830. Otherwise the government will do its duty.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, July 12.—Maude Adams will come back to Broadway next October 15th, after an absence of twenty years, and with her will return memories of an almost vanished period in New York life.

Maude Adams last played the town in 1916, when she appeared at the Empire in Barrie's "A Kiss For Cinderella." At that time she was one of the idols of the English speaking stage. Her creation of "Peter Pan," several years before, was an almost historic event. Many of the mature playgoers of the present generation had their first theatrical experience watching those never-to-be-forgotten scenes in which Peter Pan flew so miraculously across the stage looking for the ineffable Tinker Bell, his shadow.

Around Miss Adams glowed the tradition of the theatre at its best. She maintained a queenly nobility of character and conduct that was never marred throughout her career. She was one of the few actresses who really hated publicity and who fought ceaselessly against the more vulgar aspects of her profession. Few interviewers ever got to see her, and her private life was never exposed to public gossip.

Her own intense respect for the drama was communicated to thousands of playgoers, and the stage was permanently uplifted because of her unswerving integrity as an actress.

* * * *

ROYAL RETURN—The new vehicle for Miss Adams is an as yet untitled comedy-drama by Adelyn Bushnell, which John Golden will produce. In it Miss Adams will play the role of a woman of the actress's own age—62 years.

It will be a royal return, no doubt, with homage paid by swarms of old admirers. In Miss Adams' heyday New Yorkers still rolled around in carriages to the Empire theatre on Broadway and Fortieth street. The World War had not yet crushed leisurely courtesy with the armored tank of jazz sophistication. Actresses like Miss Adams held positions of genuine public affection and respect, and her stage appearances were topics of animated conversation in a thousand city drawing rooms.

It will be a gala occasion for memories and reminiscences when Maude Adams steps on stage again for her first line.

WINGS—There are stirrings at North Beach airport these days. This is Municipal Airport No. 2, and the word has gone around that the flying cops will be back.

Some time ago Mayor La Guardia ordered the police air fleet abandoned in the interests of economy. But student flyers have been crashing into private houses because of low or careless flying, traffic snarls have been resisting all land attempts at solution, and the air division will find plenty of work to do to keep the atmosphere pure and safe.

Sometimes reason isn't enough to keep fool stunt flyers from ploughing through your nice new roof.

FRIGID—The hot weather toll has made the list of Broadway theatrical offerings shrink to a mere eleven shows. Grace George could not stand the heat and "Kind Lady" has closed for the summer. "Accent On Youth" dropped out last week.

It leaves only a handful of available entertainments. The Playhouse has been air-conditioned for the popular farce, "Three Men On a Horse." So has the Alvin, home of the musical "Anything Goes"; the Winter Garden, which houses Earl Carroll's "Sketchbook"; and the Empire, where the Pulitzer Prize winner, "The Old Maid," still draws the crowds.

A few of the non-cooled theatres have plays worth seeing anyway. Clifford Odets, most promising of the younger playwrights, has "Awake and Sing," "Waiting for Lefty" and "Till the Day I Die" all running at once. "The Children's Hour" will give you something to talk about, and "Fly Away Home" is an amusing little piece of contrariness.

For the rest you'll have to rely on the movie palaces. All of those are as frigid as you'd want.

BOOKIES ARE FORCED TO PAY TAX TO STATE

SACRAMENTO, July 12.—UP—Bookmakers, like bootleggers during prohibition, are subject to state and federal taxes whether their business is legal or not, the state board of equalization revealed today.

Bookmakers and similar establishments are listed by the board as "commission businesses," issued sales tax permits and taxed, it was revealed.

"Permits for such operations are issued on the basis that they apply to retail business and do not represent board approval," Frank M. Keesling, chief tax counsel for the board, said.

"Operators either can take the position that they are doing a retail business or are gambling. If they care to use this defense in court that's entirely up to them. So far none have done so," he added.

Taxes have been collected from "bookies" in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego, it was reported. In San Diego Fred R. Thatcher, board tax administrator said he had collected $1,400 from 15 establishments.

"It's just the way the federal government handled Al Capone," Thatcher said. "They didn't get him for his crimes, but for failing to pay his taxes. I had no trouble finding the places, and have one list of them here and another at Sacramento. "However, they cannot be turned over to police without a court order."

TWO-TIME LOVE

by Nelly Graf

© 1935 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Virginia Bret, small-town private secretary, becomes engaged to her boss's son, Bruce Tregg. But Celeste Deil, an alluring divorcee who knew Bruce in college, comes to town, steals the unstable Bruce away from Virginia, and tricks him into marriage. On top of this crushing blow, Virginia's mother suddenly dies. She and her sister Lavonne sell their home and go to New York, where they hope to find jobs. Paul Thornton, a young New York business man whom Virginia had met through the Treggs had once told her that he could make an opening for her if she ever came to New York.

CHAPTER XIX

THE next morning, Virginia and Lavonne awoke to a sparkling day which revived their spirits and buoyed their hopes. After a light breakfast, they immediately set out for Paul Thornton's office.

"New York certainly seems different in the daylight," Lavonne said in a relieved tone. "It's not so scary."

Arrived at their destination, they found their way to the floor on which the Thornton Poster Company was located, and approached the bored-looking youth at the reception desk.

"Mr. Thornton?" he drawled in answer to an inquiry from Virginia. "You can't see him without an appointment."

"But I have a letter——" Virginia began.

"Les'see." He held out his hand indolently.

He read the letter without so much as a flicker of interest, then said:

"Mr Thornton is out of town right now. He'll be back, though, around the 15th—— Hey Miss Mayne!" he called to a young woman who had come out of an inner office. "Thornton'll be back by the 15th, won't he?"

"Why, yes." The girl's snappy black eyes were looking Virginia and Lavonne over. "Did you wish to see him?"

"They have a letter from some banker out in Colorado," said the boy.

MISS MAYNE took the letter and glanced over it. She didn't seem much interested in its contents, but she eyed the girls shrewdly and with a glint of amusement.

"New here, aren't you?"

"We just came yesterday," Lavonne answered. "We want to find work."

"Why didn't you stay at home?" Miss Mayne asked coolly.

Lavonne and Virginia just stared at each other. Neither seemed capable of speech, but Lavonne finally said:

"Our mother died and——"

"Skip it," Miss Mayne retorted, but her voice was kinder. "Whatever you want to forget, this is a good town to do it in. Leave your address and, as soon as Mr. Thornton returns, I'll——"

"Hey, Dixie!" A jolly-looking young man came barging through a doorway and shook his fist at Miss Mayne. "What the heck are you doing? Brown is in there foaming at the mouth to get that correspondence out of the way."

"Aw, tell him to sit on a tack," Dixie answered. "I'm just befriending a couple of lambs from out West who are looking for work in hard-hearted New York. Tell Brown he shouldn't interrupt a noble impulse."

"Sez you!" The young man was looking at Lavonne with marked interest. "Well, you're doing a darned poor job of it when you don't recognize the one to the left there as being the exact type I want for the Otis Cereal Company's poster. A wholesome, All-American girl midst the wheat and corn. She stands before you, and you don't see her. Wake up, Dixie!"

"SHE wouldn't be so bad, at that, Kirk." Dixie eyed Lavonne critically, then said to her, "I'll tell you—come with me for some trial photographs and a few hours of modeling. Thirty a week if you can stand Kirk Donnelly and his idiosyncrasies."

"I don't understand," said Lavonne.

She made no motion to enter the little gate which shut the world off from the bored young reception clerk, who had now lost all interest in the proceedings.

"Your party," he yawned to Dixie and Kirk, and turned back to clipping out pictures and ads from a stack of newspapers and magazines.

"You don't understand?" Dixie spoke impatiently to Lavonne. "There's nothing to understand except that you have that roses-and-sunshine beauty that Kirk's been hunting for. You don't find your type among New York's sophisticated gals."

"But I had hoped Virginia and I could work together." Lavonne drew back as Dixie unlatched the little gate.

"Now wouldn't the West send us something like that!" Dixie groaned. "We give the child a job the day after she reaches New York, and she isn't smart enough to know she's lucky. Manna from the skies, and the gal won't take it."

"Dixie, you quit razzing her," Kirk laughed. "The job came so suddenly, she . . ."

"Couldn't take it." Dixie shrugged. "Wants to do a sister act. Now, isn't that precious?"

Kirk ignored Dixie, and turned to Lavonne.

"I really would like for you to try modeling for this poster," he said. "Then, when Thornton comes back, I'm sure he can find a job for your sister."

"Yes, do try it!" Virginia urged Lavonne. "I'll go to some of the other places and see you tonight at the hotel."

SANITARY ERA PROJECT FOR C. C. FINISHED

The press bureau of the local SERA yesterday turned in the following article for publication:

"The SERA is putting 'Chic' Sale to shame in Contra Costa county.

"As of June 27, there were a total of 200 odd sanitary privies installed in Contra Costa county, through the SERA project, sponsored by the United States Public Health Service, and the State Health Department in cooperation with the County Health Department. Out houses will soon be made available to the entire state.

"Under a proviso furnishing SERA labor to construct the jobs, and with the specifications already laid down for the making of a clean, airy and permanent out house, developed and approved by the U. S. Public Health Service, it remains only for the individual to purchase necessary materials, for a new and complete privy job, or to have his old privy rebuilt, at a minimum of cost. The average costs of this material range from $6.00 to $22.50.

"Features of the new sanitary job include a concrete bowl, set on a concrete slab, over a vault box, set into a five foot pit. The building, approximately seven feet high, is roofed with corrugated iron, under which is an air space allowing a free circulation of air, and a four inch iron vent pipe leads from the pit out through the roof, allowing a circulation of air at that point.

"This SERA work project, available to all, has given work relief employment to approximately 1,400 men in Contra Costa county since the first of the year. Over 150,000 new sanitary privies have been built in Texas and over 132,000 in Virginia, all with SERA labor."

TRY A CLASSIFIED IN THE RECORD-HERALD FOR RESULTS

$300,000 SPENT BY LOBBY IN HOUSE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 12 UP -- A stream of money, already shown to total more than $300,000, flowed from the hotel headquarters of a utilities group in a desperate effort to whip the administration's utility holding company bill, a Senate investigating committee disclosed today.

Expenditures revealed in the first day's hearing included $151,000 for publicity, advertising and expenses of the committee of public utility executives, and $150,000 paid two New York law firms.

A New York publicity firm was paid $1,000 a week. Witnesses declined even to estimate the money that was spent by various individual power companies for advertising in the nationwide battle to defeat the utility measure.

The disclosures came today from Philip Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, composed of representatives of 18 utility companies. He lived in a hotel apartment which cost him $225 a month and spent another $200 a month on meals, taxicabs and tips.

Gadsden was called hurriedly to the capitol this morning after a series of swift maneuvers placed the senate committee, headed by Chairman Hugo Black, Democrat, Alabama, in possession of records of the hotel where the power lobby maintained quarters and of information disseminated by the public relations firm.

The inquiry began as the embattled Wheeler-Rayburn utilities bill was sent to conference. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns named the following conferees:

Sam Rayburn, Democrat, Texas, George Huddleston, Democrat Alabama, Clarence Lea, Democrat, California, John Cooper, Republican, Ohio and Peter Holmes, Republican, Massachusetts. Huddleston, Cooper and Holmes voted against the so-called "death sentence" for "unnecessary" utility holding companies demanded by President Roosevelt. The Senate conferees are four to one in favor of the "death sentence."

Gadsden, a pleasant little gray haired man, generalissimo of the utilities forces, laughed and joked with Black as he calmly admitted that he and his colleagues had conferred repeatedly with senators and representatives in their campaign to beat the bill.

Dreyfus, Center Of Old French Scandal Is Dead

PARIS, July 12—UP—Lieutenant Colonel Alfred Dreyfus, center of the political controversy which stirred France to its depths 37 years ago, died of uremia late today.

Dreyfus, who had been ill for more than a year, was surrounded by immediate members of the family.

Since the World War he divided his time between his quiet villa in Brittany and his Paris flat.

He lived a secluded and comfortable old age on a pension awarded after the old verdict against him had been quashed and he was reinstated to rank in the French army.

The Dreyfus case whirled France into a fury of persecution 37 years ago and sent the then captain to Devil's Island. After his release he was restored to honor.

The Dreyfus case scandal stirred France for 12 years. Tempests of emotion over the issue still linger. There remain ardent patriots who believe Dreyfus was not the symbol of persecution he was finally said to have been by the French supreme court.

YOUR HEALTH

Persistency Is Chief Help in Diet for Reducing

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

OVER and over again I ask folks why they want a reducing diet. The usual answer is that folks don't want to look fat. They wear their clothes out faster and it is harder to be fitted; the stores don't specialize in bargains for "outsizes." An occasional person will admit that he is short of breath or his feet ache, and he knows it is caused by overweight.

It is seldom that the question is approached from the angle that is most significant and that is the actual physical significance of carrying too much flesh. It isn't just what you think about the matter, it is what your heart and kidneys are saying about being crowded for room and overburdened with work. Most people who want to reduce say they would follow out a program if they had the will power. A clever dietitian once retorted, "What you need is the want power."

DR. CHRISMAN

It is entirely true that there are now carefully regulated dietary programs that are perfectly safe and that will bring results if persisted in. "Aye, there's the rub." We fail to persist, and the doctor and dietitian smile when they say it doesn't matter what they eat, they stay fat anyway. We always find that they didn't play the game squarely.

Cheating at Dieting

Cheating at dieting, or in fact any kind of health game, is as silly and much more serious than cheating at solitaire. Here is a statement that I have just read that puts the whole matter in simple terms. "Successful weight reduction requires intelligent effort and the practice of self denial and self control." No haphazard scheme of doing without breakfast and next without lunch and just skipping a meal now and then is going to turn the trick. The intelligent effort that must be made refers to knowing enough about your own body and what you expect of it that you can regulate the balance between the production of energy and its distribution.

This intelligence can be secured from any of a thousand food charts issued by the government, by universities, or by health authorities. Always remember that when nutrition is taken into the body, something has to be done with it. If we do not have enough exercise to wear down the tissue that our food builds up, it is bound to be deposited somewhere. That somewhere is generally where you don't want it.

The matter of exercise is another point upon which we are not in harmony with the regulations. As a rule—I can already hear the howl of contradiction—but I repeat that, as a rule, folks who are overweight are not what my father used to call "work-brittle."

Moving the Muscles

Of course, it is much more trouble to bestir the twenty-five to fifty unnecessary pounds that they carry. Just suppose that a person of normal weight were to have to carry that extra weight in a bag of sand on his back (or around his waist) with every step he took. It would make him tired to think of it. Tomorrow we shall take up just what is happening in bodies that are overweight.

Answers to Inquiries

Mrs. F. C. P. takes exception to this column in advising roughags, such as whole wheat bread, whole grain cereals and vegetables with considerable bulk, for sluggish bowels. The tone of her letter indicates that Mrs. P. is thinking of inflamed and ulcerated intestines rather than of the constipation for which the roughage was advised.

If you have read, Mrs. P., the later articles regarding colitis in its various forms, you will note that rough foods in these irritated cases are to be avoided. As for discrediting a "lay person's" opinion, as you suggest, I might assure you the activities of our professon are based upon the reactions of just such patients as yourself. We value your expressions and ask for them.

Dr. Chrisman offers readers the privilege of addressing questions to him care of this column. He will answer questions of general interest in his regular daily column on this page.

A Safe Electric Fan

At the Industrial Arts Exposition the very latest, as well as the very safest in electric fans was exhibited. Even a baby could be trusted to touch it while in motion without hurting himself, as the "blades" are formed of loops of silk ribbon. It is said to be silent and effective to a distance of ten feet.

Profiles For Today

Colonel Beck May Be Poland's Leader

By TALBOT LAKE

DEATH very often has an effect on history. When Marshal Pilsudski recently passed away Poland was left without its strong man and dictator. Who can take his place, and who can carry on the heavy job handled so capably by the late premier? Some of those who claim acquaintance with political affairs point a knowing finger at Colonel Joseph Beck, now the Foreign Minister of Poland.

Young as politicians go (he's just about forty), Colonel Beck played an important part in the Pilsudski reign. Since 1926 he has been a trusted intimate of the old Marshal, and in 1930 he was elevated to the post of Minister Without Portfolio. This has given him first-hand knowledge of state affairs, not only in his own country, but around the international ring as well.

The Colonel is a tall, scholarly-looking man with thin, dark hair, which he wears slicked down on one side. He was educated at the Polytechnical Academy of Lwow and at the Academy of Commerce in Vienna. Very early during the war he enlisted in the legions behind Marshal Pilsudski who were envisioning independence for Poland. By 1918 he was active leader in the Polish army.

After the Treaty of Versailles assured Poland of her place, Colonel Beck shifted from the military to diplomacy. In 1919 he was sent on a special mission to Rumania, and in 1921 he represented his country in the Polish-Lithuanian conference in Brussels. The next year he was with the Polish Embassy in Paris.

Entering the Foreign Office as undersecretary in 1931, the Colonel often acted for Foreign Minister Zaleski, and so obtained the experience which is now standing him in so good stead. He was made Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1932, and all that has gone on between Poland and the Geneva conferences has been entirely in his hands for the past few years.

For a glazed pie crust, brush the pie with the white of an egg. Use a pastry brush; it will give a smooth finish.

Guide to Charm

Shampoo Is 1st Detail In Beauty Code

By JACQUELINE HUNT

A GOOD shampoo is the starting point of any beauty session. A freshened face looks incomplete without a halo of silky, lustrous hair. This should be a real beauty shampoo, so see that it meets the needs of your scalp and hair. If your hair is overdry, have a leisurely hot oil treatment.

Brush your hair thoroughly to remove as much lint and dust and particles of dandruff as possible. Then saturate your scalp with the warm oil, and massage thoroughly with rotary movement of the fingertips until the scalp feels warm and tingling.

The next step is to lay towels wrung out of hot water over your head like a Turk's turban — or turn on the sunlamp, while you part your hair at intervals and literally bathe it in the artificial sunshine.

Now wash. For dry hair use a thick lather of bland soap. For oily hair a stronger soap like tar or tincture of green soap. When the hair is thoroughly clean—and this takes three separate applications of liquid soap—rinse it several times. Have in the last rinse water some ingredient to make the hair soft and lustrous. Vinegar is good for dark hair, lemon juice for blonde and bluing for hair that is becoming silver.

MISS HUNT

The older woman should always dry her hair by hand and in the air and sunlight if possible. While still damp coax in the natural waves and ringlets. Or if they are absent, use a waving fluid and set the hair the way you want it to go with waterwave combs or with your fingers and clips.

Study the shape of your head while you are working with your hair and see if a haircut would improve your appearance. Straggling wisps of hair around your neckline and the edges of your coiffure are more aging than gray hair. Long bobs are also devastating to older faces. Hair that is well up on the head or off the neck will do much to perk up your sagging cheeks and flabby chinline.

Meanwhile you will have to do the best you can with your wave and putting the ends up into ringlets. Now slip a silk net cap over your curled and waved locks and prepare for a relaxing, yet stimulating, refreshing facial.

A pack is especially beneficial for the older woman. It leaves the skin soft, glowing, stimulated and smooths the little tired lines on your forehead and around your mouth and eyes. All facials begin with a thorough cleansing. Use two or more applications of cleansing cream instead of soap and water for this purpose as packs are drying.

Simple, But Effective

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Should a woman between forty and forty-five with a passable skin use a rejuvenating cream? My reason for asking is that I have an impression such a cream is mostly for old women who are much wrinkled. I am not wrinkled, but I want to use the cream if it will help any.—S. E."

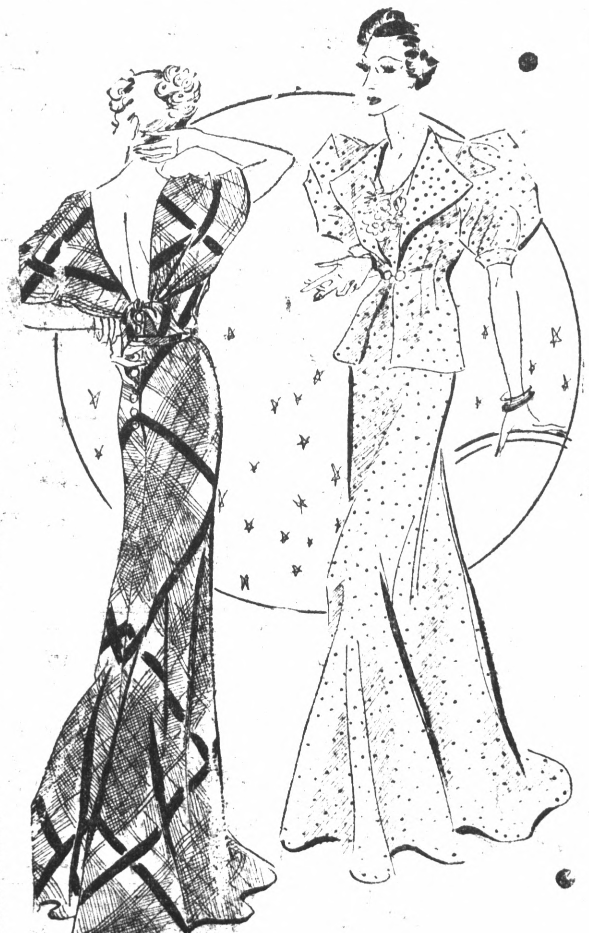
You know the old adage about "an ounce of prevention——" don't you? Since your skin is fairly good, I would not advise a strong preparation of any kind for your skin, but I do believe that a good cream applied with light massage movements twice a week will improve the condition of your skin and will postpone your first wrinkles. Get a cream that combines softening and toning properties. If you will send me your complete name and address, I will be glad to tell you the names of several such creams.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "I have received an invitation to a church wedding but not to the reception which is to follow. Is a gift necessary under these circumstances?—Olga P."

ANSWER: An invitation to a church wedding only, when a wedding reception will follow the wedding at church, means that it is not necessary to send a gift. You may send one if you wish, of course, but people are making it a rule more and more these days to send gifts only to intimate friends and relatives. You no doubt would have been invited to the reception also, if you were regarded as such.

Frou-Frou Fabrics Now Tailored



By IRENE VAIL

Ever since Chanel decided to tailor chiffon—it was just after the war—others of the couture have been following her lead. Now we have all manner of frou-frou fabrics, tailored to the Queen's taste. Lace is especially well liked on rather severe lines. Starching it helps a lot. There are also crin laces well able to stand on their own, even without the assistance of taffeta, which is usually accorded them. Paquin has done really exquisite things with lace this season and is one of those who sponsors black satin for the pre-autumn daytime fashion.

Vionnet scored at the recent openings with her open-work chiffon dresses for evening. Organdie, both printed, plain and embroidered, was included in all of the important showings. This is easy enough to understand in a season in which the vaporous frock is the headliner. Several of the houses advocated ruffles in such materials on both skirt and bodice.

If you are the tall, stately type set on going in for Greek draperies and all that sort of thing, net may not have an interest for you but it should. Why not flutter forth in a beruffled net just by way of doing the unexpected?

The two costumes illustrated are sponsored for summer evening wear.

The model at the left is done in an Indian plaid, and makes a point of covered shoulders, buttoned details and bows and a widely flaring skirt.

The companion costume, developed in dotted pique, also shows originality. The revers puffed sleeves and closely fitted jacket as well as the wide skirt, are noteworthy.

Wine Flavor Adds Spice to the Cooking

By JUDITH WILSON

IN France and Italy, the great wine producing countries of the world, wine is as necessary in the kitchen as salt. No cook would attempt to prepare meat or fish, or a special dessert without using wine. In this country, however, the use of wines in the preparation of food is something new, but the idea has appealed to American housewives and the demand for good wine recipes is increasing.

There is no need for the wine used in cookery to be expensive. It is the fruit flavor and the acids in the wine that make it so valuable for adding flavor and richness to foods. The amount of alcohol is immaterial, for it evaporates quickly during the cooking.

If you have never tried wine in this way, begin with the humble pot roast that is inexpensive, but rich and delicious when prepared in this way:

Pot Roast with Vegetables and Wine Sauce
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Buttered New Limas
Salad of Mixed Field Greens
Macedoine of Fruit
Demi-Tasse

Cream of Mushroom Soup
Kidneys Saute
Steamed Rice or Spaghetti
Asparagus Parmesan
Mixed Salad
Ice Cream with Chocolate Sauce
Coffee

Have a five pound piece of beef well larded. Sear it on all sides in a heavy pot. When nicely browned add four small onions, peeled and sliced, and cook until golden brown then add four carrots, scraped and cut into thick sections. If you have it, add a calve's foot or veal bone to the pot. Now add one cup boiling water and one cup dry white wine such as sauterne. Add salt to taste, cover the pot and simmer slowly for about four hours. Look occasionally to see if there is enough liquid and if it has cooked low add water and wine in equal proportions. Immediately before serving remove the meat and vegetables to a hot platter, then add a small wineglass of port wine to the sauce and cook for five minutes.

Kidney Saute

This makes a good breakfast, lunch or supper entree when prepared at the table in a chafing dish. Melt a good sized piece of butter and add the desired number of veal kidneys cut in pieces about the size of walnuts. When well browned add a small glass of cognac and light it with a match. When the flame dies out add a good-sized glass of Madeira or port wine. Season with salt and pepper and a shallot chopped fine. Cover and simmer for five minutes and serve on thin crisp slices of toast, on rice or buttered spaghetti.

Macedoine of Fruit

Make a syrup of two cups each of sugar and water, boiling about ten minutes. Remove from the fire, add two tablespoons brandy and two tablespoons creme de menthe, creme de cocoa or any other liqueur. Chill thoroughly. Cut into small but attractive shapes, bananas, fresh strawberries, sections of orange, fresh or canned peaches and pineapples. Have about two and one-half cups of the fruit. Mix with the syrup and continue to chill until dinner time. This makes four generous servings. Crisp, sweet wafers may be served with the fruit if you wish.

FOR THE SNACK

CHEESE ROULETTES: 2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening, 2/3 cup milk, melted butter, 1 cup grated American cheese, salt, paprika.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll into oblong sheet, ⅛ inch thick. Brush with melted butter. Spread cheese evenly over dough. Sprinkle with salt and paprika. Cut in strips, 6 x ½ inches, roll each strip, and place in greased muffin pans. Or roll sheet as for jelly roll, cut in ¾ inch slices, and places slices on greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 2 dozen roulettes.

MODERN WOMEN

The Case of a Wife Who Works and a Husband Who Can't Find It

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

IT'S against human nature to expect happiness in a household in which the man's the stay-at-home and the woman the bread winner. As an emergency measure there is nothing to be said about it, but as a steady diet it is highly indigestible. A girl who marries a man without a job need not be surprised if he delays in finding one.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: I am 27 and married to as nice a man as I could wish for, but he has no job and no prospect of a job. I have, and while I don't mind holding my end up I do object to holding up both ends. I know there are not enough jobs to go around, still it seems to me that a strong, able-bodied man could get something to do. I am very unhappy—perhaps I should say we are unhappy, for how could it be otherwise with such a situation?

MRS. MARTIN

"We've been married two years and when we were married it looked as though he would get work immediately. It was in the depression, and the fact that he was out of work did not seem serious to me. Now it's different. He says he tries to get work, and maybe he does, but when I leave in the morning he is always home, and when I get home he is usually trying to get dinner. Now I ask you, Mrs. Martin, how could we be happy, and what are we to do?—Nora."

Being the Sport

Try to be a better sport, for one thing. You admit to thinking a jobless husband was good enough for you when you married him, but now he doesn't seem to fill the bill, does he? Were you not perhaps over-anxious to marry?

Unless this man had a job, or a good prospect of it, or unless he had money enough to support you, he had no right to ask you to marry him. But he was good enough for you then, and you ought to feel that he is good enough for you now. But you don't—and I can't say that I blame you.

It is not in the cards for a marriage conducted as yours is to bring happiness to either party. A man is humiliated by having to stay home and do housework while his wife brings home the bacon. And a humiliated man is resentful and determined to make some one pay for his ignominy.

The old theories won't work as conditions are today. It certainly is not going to benefit matters if you, the job holder, decide to stay home just to "show him" and to force your husband to be more zealous in his quest for work. And you were not, I hope, thinking of turning him out. You are bound to give him a chance and all the encouragement you can.

Using the Influence

Would it be at all possible for you to place him in some capacity through your own efforts and maybe with the influence of some of your friends? He may just not know how to go about getting work. I have found in my experience that there are many men and women who lack the initiative to place themselves in jobs, but when placed there by someone else really make a very creditable showing.

You are wrong in letting the housework — stay-at-home — habit become chronic. You must do everything you can to discourage that, for there are men who really would ask nothing better than to play the woman's part in life. How about doing your own cooking and dishwashing for a change? Many business women do.

It's difficult for women to understand why supporting their husbands tends to turn said husbands against them, but the sooner they try to understand it the better for all parties concerned. Real men just won't be supported by women. And gigolos invariably hate the women on whom they are paid to dance attendance. Don't for one moment think that your husband, if he's worth his salt, is happy under the existing circumstances. You will aid him most by helping him extricate himself from a very humiliating position.

You and Your Child

"No-ing" Sometimes Doesn't Work

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

PHILIP, evidently, has no fear of high places. He would much rather perch himself on a windowsill than anywhere else. Being only three years old, settling himself there entails a little climbing. That he never reaches his goal, though he tries hard with repeated frequency, is the result of mother's tireless watchfulness.

MRS. GOWARD

While it is true that their apartment is on the first floor, a height of but ten feet from the street, a fall from here doubtless could be fatal. For according to mother's way of thinking, the child is set upon falling out. Philip, on the other hand, just wants to look out. He likes looking out of windows.

If mother could be made to see his way, it would be a simple matter to break him of the habit. And, incidentally, she would be relieving herself of unnaccessary anxiety at the same time. All it would take is a high stool placed near the window for looking out. Or a chair propped up with a cushion or too, bringing him to a comfortable height for resting his elbows on the windowsill. Or, if mother could do so without offending the child, she even might bring his baby high-chair up form the cellar and re-christen it "The Look-Out Chair."

Instead of this, Philip's mother can be heard correcting him as follows, when she wants him to leave the window: "No! No! No! No!" This command rarely works the first four or eight times. It works generally only if and when mother's voice makes it imperative enough. Day by day Philip gets more callous to mother's "no"!

What can she do about this? She can try saying "no" once only accompanied by a sharp slap. The pain will impress the youngster with a new meaning for "no." At the same time, of course, mother should try to devise ways for avoiding useless no-ings.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC WORK

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF RICHMOND, ON THE 8TH DAY OF JULY, 1935, PASSED AND ADOPTED RESOLUTION OF INTENTION NO. 487 TO ORDER THE FOLLOWING WORK TO BE DONE IN THE CITY OF RICHMOND, COUNTY OF CONTRA COSTA, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, SAID RESOLUTION BEING SUBSTANTIALLY AS FOLLOWS:

"That the public interest and convenience require, and that it is the intention of the Council of the City of Richmond to order, the closing up as public streets of the following described portions of Scofield Street and Standard Avenue within the corporate limits of the City of Richmond, in the County of Contra Costa, State of California, to-wit:

"Portion of Scofield Street: A strip of land containing .105 acres situated in Richmond, Contra Costa County, California, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point of intersection of the northwesterly line of Scofield Street and the southwesterly line of Road No. 26 as now laid out and existing and more recently named Standard Avenue, which point is also described as the point of commencement in the description of a 1.21 acre tract of land for Scofield Street in that certain deed from Standard Oil Company to City of Richmond, dated December 19, 1916, and filed in Volume 284 of Deeds, page 203, Records of Contra Costa County; thence along said northwesterly line of Scofield Street South 52° 46′ West, 764.47 feet; thence South 57° 49′ West, 535.9 feet, more or less, (formerly called South 56° 05′ West, 539.33 feet) to the northwesterly line of Ocean Boulevard formerly known as Road No. 27; thence along said street line produced northeasterly North 83° 56′ 30″ East, 3.41 feet; thence North 57° 49′ East, 572.7 feet, more or less; thence North 52° 46′ East, 725.75 feet to the southwesterly line of Road 26 (Standard Avenue); thence along said line North 46° 43′ West, 5.07 feet to the point of beginning.

"Portion of Standard Avenue: A strip of land containing .007 acres situated in Richmond, Contra Costa County, California, more particularly desbribed as follows: Beginning at a point of intersection of the northwesterly line of Scofield Street and the southwesterly line of Road No. 26 as now laid out and existing and more recently named Standard Avenue which point of beginning is also the most southerly corner of a certain .149 acre tract of land heretofore conveyed from the City of Richmond to Standard Oil Company by deed dated May 21, 1934, and recorded in Volume 366 at page 163, Official Records of Contra Costa County; thence along the northwesterly line of Scofield Street produced as described in said deed, North 52° 46′ East, 60.83 feet to the northeasterly line of Road 26 (Standard Avenue); thence along said line South 46° 43′ East (formerly called South 46° 44′ East) a distance of 5.07 feet; thence leaving said street line South 52° 46′ West, 60.83 feet to the southwesterly line of Road 26 (Standard Avenue); thence along said line North 46° 43′ West, 5.07 feet to the point of beginning, being a portion of that certain piece or parcel of land used for street purposes and described in deed from Standard Oil Company to City of Richmond dated September 3, 1909 and recorded in Volume 150 of Deeds at page 18, Records of Contra Costa County, California.

"That the exterior boundaries of the district of land to be affected or benefited by the closing up of said portions of streets and to be assessed to pay the damages, costs, and expenses thereof, are hereby specified as follows, to wit: the exterior boundaries of the City of Richmond as they now exist are hereby adopted as and shall constitute and be the boundaries of such district.

"That said work of improvement is to be done under an act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled, "An Act to provide for laying out, opening, extending, widening, straightening or closing up in whole or in part any street, square, lane, alley, court or place within municipalities, and to condemn and acquire any and all land and property necessary or convenient for that purpose," approved March 6, 1889, and all acts amendatory thereto."

Reference is hereby made to said Resolution of Intention Number 487 now on file in the office of the Clerk of the City of Richmond, for further particulars:

Santa Barbara Hill Area Hit By Grass Fire

SANTA BARBARA, July 12—UP—Jumping a fire break and spreading despite efforts of more than 500 men, a 5000 acre fire raging in the Santa Barbara National forest was out of control again tonight.

Fire lines of weary, smoke grimed men reformed their cordon around the big red circle of flame tonight, after the blaze sprang into renewed life this afternoon, and hoped to keep the flames out of valuable stands of tall timber.

This afternoon's run by the fire, driving the crews before it over the rugged canyons, added 80 acres to the blackened area. Before the new outbreak, rangers had believed the blaze nearly under control.

Subway Plan Is Favored In S. F. Traffic Studies

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12—UP—Subways were favored over elevated railways for San Francisco in the long-awaited survey made for the city by Robert Ridgway, subway expert, released today.

Ridgway opposed the construction of an elevated system on the grounds that despite the fact it would cost perhaps a third the amount a subway system would require, would cause noise, property damage, ugliness and traffic congestion.

Ridgway upheld the three main subway routes—Market, Mission, and Montgomery streets— and the high speed Bernal cut surface line recommended by Utilities Manager E. G. Cahill in his $56,200,000 plan. Ridgway chopped $3,500,000 off the tentative cost of the Cahill plan, however, by various changes, including a shortening of the proposed Bernal cut line.

Jobless Man Is Held For Threat To Blow Up F. R.

KANSAS CITY, July 12.—Jacob M. Bregman, 41, unemployed telegrapher, was arrested here today charged with writing a threatening letter to President Roosevelt which contained a threat to blow up the White House.

"I need help. President Roosevelt has helped others. Why shouldn't he help me," Bregman, a native of England, told officers.

William H. Davenport, secret service agent, said Bregman admitted writing the letter, but contended he had no intention of attempting to blow up the White House.

Boulder Dam Workers Strike, Halting Work

BOULDER CITY, July 12.—UP—Construction work on the $49,000,000 Boulder Dam project was partially tied up tonight as 3,000 workers led by 500 carpenters and iron workers, striking for a paid lunch hour, went into conference to determine a course of action.

The men dropped their tools when a mass meeting of workers voted to place the affair in the hands of the Central Labor Council.

The general strike followed almost immediately on the heels of a walkout of carpenters and iron workers, representing about 23 per cent of the total employed force.

RELIEF FOR EAST SEEN FOR TODAY

(Copyright 1935 by United Press)

More than 100 persons have been killed by heat, floods and tornadoes which ravaged the nation this week a United Press check showed Friday night.

Torrid weather which grilled the middlewest and spread to the eastern seaboard added to suffering in areas in New York and Pennsylvania which had been swept by precedented floods earlier in the week.

RELIEF TODAY

The weather bureau promised relief Saturday for the East, where millions gasped beneath a searing sun that sent July temperatures to the highest levels for the month in 24 years.

In parts of the midwest, thunderstorms broke the grip of the heat wave. Cooling winds were expected to soothe suffering over the Ohio valley, extending into the East.

HEAT SPREADS

Nine deaths attributed to the heat were reported in the New York metropolitan area, while New England states added at least six more.

The heat knew no boundaries, stretching from the deep south to the Canadian border. Its route along the Mississipp valley was marked by 48 deaths.

Wisconsin had five weather fatalities.

Cool air, bringing windstorms and heavy rains to the midwest, banished the murderous heat wave there. But the sudden change induced violent storms in some sections.

many witnesses before congressional committees, refused to be awed by the ways and means committee. He met them on their own ground and slugged it out.

WASHINGTON MENACE

"I haven't the slightest doubt," he said, "opposing any tax increase at this time, "that in the Washington menace—the inner group that surrounds the President and has his ear—there are numerous conspirators who do not want prosperity to return and who do want to see private property in this country so discredited that the doctrines of Karl Marx shall be substituted for those of Washington, Lincoln, Hamilton, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson and Coolidge.

"This proposal before your committee to redistribute wealth is one of the six major menaces that hang over the country like a black cloud and are holding back the recovery that is raring to go. The other five are the destruction of representative government by converting congress into a rubber stamp, fomenting hatred of the constitution and the supreme court, destruction of the rights of states and the creation of a race of mendicants, loafers and weaklings through abuse of relief and sentimental social legislation."

Democratic members of the committee figeted in their chairs during this blast and as soon as Chandler had completed his statements, they leaped to the attack.

jury with a request that we recommend your reinstatement in the social welfare department I am directed to advise you as follows:

"First: The grand jury deeply appreciates your assistance in the administration of justice in this county and your candor before the grand jury.

"Second: The grand jury to date has brought no indictment against you or made any recommendation for your removal from your position.

"Third: The grand jury regrets that inasmuch as you were involved in the filing and cashing of a false claim against Contra Costa county "which is a felony," the grand jury cannot conscientiously make any recommendation for your reinstatement.

"Trusting that the action of the grand jury in this matter is clear in every respect, I am very truly yours

"M. M. GARRETT, Secretary,

Waley Case To Be Given Jury Today

ridor outside the courtroom of Federal Judge E. E. Cushman as Hughes branded the Utah girl as a principal in the case and questioned her moral relations with the fugitive William Mahan.

REFUSE TO DISMISS CHARGE

Judge Cushman again refused to dismiss one count of the indictment against the 19-year-old Utah girl, charging conspiracy to kidnap, and to direct a verdict of acquittal.

Hughes branded Mrs. Waley's assertion that she acted in fear of the fugitive Mahan as "a fabrication and a recent fabrication."

SCORES WOMAN

The woman had many opportunities for turning Mahan in to officers as she traveled with him from Spokane to Seattle and back again, during his successful efforts to collect $200,000 ransom, Hughes said.

He questioned her moral behavior, citing her admission that she occupied the same one-room apartment at Seattle with Mahan several nights while her husband guarded the boy elsewhere.

He emphasized mistreatment of the curly-haired heir to a lumber fortune, who was chained in two holes in the ground, chained to a tree, cramped in the rear trunk of a sedan on a long trip across the state into Idaho, and imprisoned in a small closet in Spokane.

Although Mrs. Waley knew the anguish Mrs. Weyerhaeuser must have been suffering, she did nothing to relieve her, the attorney shouted.

"She was in it from the start. They all have their women, their gun molls, to remove suspicion from themselves."

Eloquent Is Defense Of Constitution

obsolete a relic of oxcart days and should be done away with. I am not one who believes that the constitution should not be amended. I insist that it should not be twisted by the courts to meet any situations the prevailing political party desires it to meet. I insist that Congress should not disregard it. I insist that if it is going to be changed, let it be amended in accordance with the terms of the constitution.

ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

"The 35 men who signed it did not realize that their genius had created a document which was to preside over the destinies of a growing republic, which would expand from the Atlante ocean across the slopes of the Alleghenies, sweep down with the evergrowing population into the broad expanse of the Mississippi Valley across the Rockies into this western shore. They foresaw that amendments would be required and provided that the people might make changes and 21 amendments have been added."

AFRAID OF TYRANNY

Continuing the speaker emphasized the fact that the men who framed the constitution were afraid that the government might become tyrannical so they carefully restricted its powers by establishing three departments of government—a Congress to make laws, a President to enforce them, and a judiciary to interpret them, each branch being a check on the others, and each possessing independent powers that neither of the others can usurp.

CONTRASTS CONSTITUTIONS

Contrasting the constitution of the United States with that of other nations, he said:

"Thus we live under a written constitution guaranteeing the rights of personal liberty, personal security and the pursuit of happiness The constitutions of Switzerland Belgium, and Great Britain are not written. They may be changed over night. These rights for which our forefathers fought and bled are protected by our written constitution against the tyranny of the majorities. Our constitution protects our fundamental rights against the power of the executive and against the entire power of the states. In this, the constitution of the United States differs from all other constitutions of all other nations.

"The constitution of Italy is the fertile and restless brain of Mussolini; the constitution of Germany is the daring and resourceful character of Hitler; the constitution of Russia is the iron will of Stalin; the constitution of of the United States is the will and the purpose of the American people crystallized into a written document binding upon rulers and people alike. During its 147 years of existence the common man has had more freedom, has enjoyed more liberty, than in any other time during the recorded history of the nations of the world."

PRAISES SUPREME COURT

Praising the Supreme Court for its decision in the NRA case, in confirming the fundamental principle that this is a government of laws and not a government of men, he said:

"To allow Congress to delegate its legislative power to the President in violation of the constitution means that you are making of the President, a dictator. Under the power given the President by Congress in the National Industrial Recovery Act, five thousand laws have been promulgated not by Congress but by the executive department, violation of which constitute crimes which regulated and controlled personal conduct. The court declared that this was carrying the matter too far; for the people should at least have an opportunity to pass on the question.

WARNING GIVEN

Concluding with a stirring appeal, Mr. Carlson said:

"Let us proclaim to the world that it is upon our constitution that the republic has been builded. Let us proclaim that upon its preservation depends not alone the future of the republic, but the future of the liberties of mankind. Let the poor man who would destroy the constitution remember that it is his surest defense against oppression at the hands of the rich and the powerful; let the men of property who would flout its provisions remember that the constitution is his surest protection against the mob."

recognition, but has heretofore been deliberately ignored. While resorting to the crying towel, the paper at the same time gives an appointment by County Assessor George O. Looks to a man up a tree when a village with a population of 9,610 can get away with a hunk of the pie that size it cannot consistently claim to have been shut out of the picture.

Richmond with its 20,093 souls, proportionately, at least has not fared nearly so well and we are forced to admit that there are many here who fain would attach themselves to the payrolls of county officials.

It is a good time, I apprehend, to tear a leaf out of Pittsburg's Book of Lamentations and start sobbing, so in event of any vacancies we will have our tear-stained petitions where they can be seen.

SERA Praised For Programs At Hospital

Gratitude for the SERA program given at Mare Island on Sunday, for hospitalized sailors, was expressed by Mary Randolph Hughes, acting field director for the Red Cross, in a letter received yesterday at local SERA headquarters.

Miss Hughes said: "The splendid SERA program which you presented at this hospital last Sunday afternoon . . . was thoroughly enjoyed by the patients and in their behalf we wish to express to you our most sincere appreciation.

"We hope very much it may be possible for you to continue to cooperate with our local Red Cross chapters in providing entertainment for the patients at this hospital for it is rarely that they had such a treat as you gave them on the above occasion."

At a late hour last night, when no trace of the missing man and the two children had been found, police expressed belief that he may have driven to Eureka where he has relatives and friends. As a result, police along the Redwood highway were warned to be on the lookout for him.

WIFE LEFT HIM

According to Mill Valley police, the young wife left Madden several days ago. She told police that he had beaten her and that she was afraid he was going insane.

"Mrs. Madden came here to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Manning," Chief McCurdy said. "She left the two boys, three and four years old with their father.

THREATENS MURDER

"Yesterday Madden appeared with the boys and asked her to come back to him. She refused. He then grabbed the boys and ran to his car, yelling, "I'm going to kill them and myself."

"Shortly after this happened, a letter arrived for Mrs. Madden from her husband. Evidently he wrote it before he started here. She said it threatened murder for her and suicide for him."

Madden's license number is 2G-82-89.

COURT GASSED

Hand-to-hand fighting broke out in front of the federal courthouse where the trial of Margaret Waley on a charge of kidnaping George Weyerhaeuser was adjourning for the day.

Tear and nausea gas floated through the corridors of the courthouse. Spectators deserted the courtroom to join five thousand citizens who lined the sidewalks around the battle scene.

The crowd appeared generally sympathetic with the demonstrators, jeering the young infantrymen from eastern Washington's fruit and wheat belt.

Step-Son Held For Beating Of San Jose Farmer

SAN JOSE, July 12.—UP—As a result of a fight with his stepson, Vance Baldi, 44, rancher, was in the Santa Clara county hospital today with three broken ribs, a broken arm, concussion of the brain and possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

The stepson, Ernest Lombardi, 17, clubbed the rancher unconscious according to sheriff's office reports when Baldi beat another stepson, Danny Lombardi, 16, brother of Ernest, with a fence picket. The picket broke, according to the story told polce, and Baldi then attempted to slash the boy with a knife.

Mrs. Baldi said today that she will press charges of assault with intent to commit murder against her husband.
